

Get On Course With Smart Home Technology

As the fast moving world of Smart Home technology advances, Simply Automate is offering a comprehensive range of training courses to help self builders and property developers gain a greater understanding of home automation.

From a basic introduction in Smart Home technology, to the more sophisticated applications of fully integrated Smart Home systems, the experts at Simply Automate will give you the tools and knowledge to guide you effortlessly through the maze of products and applications available.

Brand new for 2006, Simply Automate invites property developers to take part in the first ever Harmony-Dupline training course. The Harmony-Dupline course has been designed to equip electricians and self builders with the knowledge and ability to incorporate this integrated smart lighting and control system into their properties.

Other popular courses include the X10 Training Course and Smart Home Technologies Training. Smart Home Technologies Training covers the specification, installation and commissioning of additional Smart Home products to complement the basics of lighting and appliance automation. Topics covered include automated window dressings, digital CCTV and whole house audio video systems. Training courses combine a mixture of both practical and theory.
